

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A portable computer system, including a display cover, a lower housing, a hinge arrangement configured to mechanically connect the display cover and the lower housing, a processor disposed within the lower housing and a wireless communication device disposed within the display cover. The wireless communication device has an antenna. An Ethernet link at least partially defines a communication link between the processor and the wireless communication device.